Fly on the wall

Roger has been working so hard over the last few days he was tempted to emulate Chris's skinhead look to keep cool ...he got as far as putting the shaving foam on his head before changing his mind.

George has earned the reputation of a Tarzan figure as he scrambled up a tree to get a stamp during bikes.

Clare, clearly influenced by Lewis Hamilton, was brake testing Tanya causing her to fall off. The stewards are reviewing the incident.

Jane and Rich have devised a new game of 'play push'. This involves pushing somebody down a slope, early trials have caused some tensions.

Exhausted by a busy morning Quad biking Dani was catching up on a few Zzzs but Jez's driving eventually foiled her attempts.

There appears to be a real love of gravy in the Fraser-Hook household for Izzy was seen lapping up hers catlike and Francesca had made two litres for tonight's evening meal.

Tomos caused some hilarity to the Gannets entertaining them with his falling over act.

Matt apparently had a confrontation with an electric fence - I have to wonder if cows know the dangers; perhaps he should have gone to specsavers.

Rich was seen to be testing his boots for leaks by leaving them out in the rain and seeing where the water leaked out.

Dusty forgot all her 11.5 years and romped like a puppy in the River with Shadow.

Tom Pritchard tried a culinary experiment of dunking his chops in fire bucket water. Chef Gary did not like his 'jus' choice and sorted it.

Did you Know?

The beautiful market town of Axminster is set on the River Axe within the East Devon Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, With its quaint villages and unspoilt countryside, and just a few miles inland from the Jurassic Coast World Heritage Site, Axminster achieved worldwide fame for its Axminster Carpets, first made by Thomas Whitty in 1755. Each time a carpet was finished the bells at the Minster were rung in celebration. The Minster stands in its oasis of green at the heart of the town, and was once so prestigious that Saxon princes were buried here. Nearby is Axminster's Heritage & Museum in Thomas Whitty House where you can find out more about the town's carpet industry.

Explore the East Devon Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, walk for miles in the stunning countryside and ancient woodlands, and explore the Axe Valley rivers – spotting otters and kingfishers along the way. Interesting places nearby include Loughwood Meeting House (NT) at Dalwood and the important non-fortified Middle Ages manor house of Shute Barton (NT) which supposedly boasts the largest open fireplace in England. The East Devon Way footpath and Buzzard Route cycle track pass close to the town, while the mudflats of the Axe estuary are superb for birdwatching with curlew, oystercatcher, and egret.

James Scott has arrived on camp having had to work on Saturday. He is leaving early to go to London on an acting activity. However he has already started earning his crust on camp with a tea towel in his hand within a short time of his arrival.

Camp Leaders chat

We hope you are all settled in and enjoyed your first day's activities. It is very important that you are punctual for the minibuses. Some activities were delayed today because people weren't ready. Please check your calendars- if in doubt ask.

LONG HAIR danger

...please ensure that when you are cooking, long hair must be worn in scrunchies.

Be prepared wear sunscreen & waterproofs. PLEASE Don't drive over water pipes.

Remember there are actually THREE inspections of your site EVERY day. At night time saws, axes and clothes left out will lose you points.

Hint for PLs: Delegation of patrol's duties on a chart helps win LOTS of points. When it's bed time, please go to bed and stay there. DON'T wander around the camp site.
