

Fly on the wall

Tank and Jez became 'blood brothers' when they cut their fingers dismantling the coracles Rich was overheard saying to Helen if she concentrated more on cooking the eggs then he wouldn't have to wait so long - She has never been known to concentrate on anything.

Clair has taken possession of a new inflatable bed; much mirth was heard coming from their tent when Chris joined her testing it out.

Some of you might have heard voices in the middle of the night- no you weren't imagining it, Dani was taken poorly and Wayne was startled by her arrival in his tent in the early hours. Thanks to Molly for caring for Dani in the night. Rumours of Competition Meal Judges being 'nobbled' have been confirmed; flowers and origami frogs were added to the samples taken to the judges by Daniel on behalf of the Pinkies. Clare has been repairing a chair using a very special saddle needle; unfortunately a gust of wind blew the chair from it's unattended place on the table. A needle hunt was then undertaken, looking for a needle in a hay...field was eventually successful.

Our Mountain Biking correspondent reports that there is some potential jealousy aimed at breaking up the Bizzy relationship when Tia used her bike as a tool to separate them. Rich was dunked by his 'mate'

Dave in the river as he demonstrated how safe a slide down the ramp was in a kayak. Luke discovered that his jumping from the bridge into the river technique was not very kind to his shins as he flopped painfully into the river.

The great water bottle hunt has been called off as Takuma's and Tomos's have suddenly reappeared.

Did you Know?

Seaton is a small seaside town which faces onto Lyme Bay, to the west of the mouth of the River Axe with red cliffs to one side and white cliffs on the other. Axmouth and Beer are nearby. A sea wall provides access to the mostly shingle beach stretching for about a mile, and a small harbour.

During Roman times this was an important port. In Saxon times Seaton was known as Fluta or Fleet, the Saxon word for creek. The town of Fleet was founded by Saxon Charter in 1005 AD. The first mention of Seaton was in a papal bull by Pope Eugenius in 1146.

Seaton was an important port for several centuries, supplying ships and sailors for Edward I's wars against Scotland and France. In the 14th century heavy storms caused a landslip which partially blocked the estuary, and the shingle bank started to build up. In 1868 the arrival of the railway reduced the use of the harbour.

In November 2013 builder Laurence Egerton, a metal detector enthusiast, unearthed the Seaton Down Hoard of copper-alloy coins. The hoard, of about 22,000 Roman coins, is believed to be one of the largest and best-preserved 4th-century collections ever found in Britain. A team of archaeologists carefully removed and cleaned the coins over the next 10 months.

In the 19th century Seaton developed as a holiday resort, which it remains to this day. Seaton lost its largest holiday camp at the beginning of 2009 when the site was purchased by Tesco who opened a major supermarket on the site in late 2011.
